RICHES FOR THE DEAD.

MOST OBSCURE DEATH HOUSE
OF MODERN TIMES

$500,000 for a Mausoleum,
$100,000 for two Caskets,
and a Burial Robe
Costing $20,000.

A FANCY OF THE HILLERS

Nothing in the line of mortuary architecture in the United States can compare with the structure
recently completed at Winchester, Mass. On this gorgeous home of dead $500,000 have been spent, and within the portals Dr. Francis B. Hiller awaits the judgment day resting in a casket which costs $50,000.

A similar one stands vacant in this city. In the time when it will be placed the remains of the Dorchester. It is under Mrs. Hiller's direction that this magnificent mausoleum has been erected. It stands 100 by 50 feet on the ground and is 75 feet high.
The structure is like that of an Oriental temple, and the front is of Gothic design. The structure is of granite and marble and weighs over twenty tons.

The main gateway is thirty feet
high and the interior is of granite,
trimmed and ornamented with brass.
Here, according to the provisions of a trust which Mrs. Hiller has created for the purpose, a watchman will take the dead to their last resting place.

Mr. W. R. Fox, Paralell, and Joe, who is now in London.

Mrs. Fox was one of the choicest specimens of God's creature. A good woman. As a sister, wife, mother and friend, she was true and faithful to all. Her life was one of well done duty and of Christian kindness and charity, and her memory will be lovingly cherished by the numerous recipients of her kindness. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of a large circle of admiring friends, and will, we trust, find comfort in consulting the good deeds of that blessed old mother who is now in the Master's right hand, singing eternal praises to Him who doeth all things well.

Oyster Supper Thanksgiving Eve. On Thanksgiving there will be an oyster supper at Masonic Hall given by the Masonic ladies for the benefit of a widow of our town who has been sick for quite awhile and is in destitute circumstances. Everyone should turn out on this occasion and the ladies on the committee will do everything in their power to make it a pleasant entertainment. Refreshments of all kinds will also be sold. ## It Pays and Pays Well.

That ladies advertising pays and pays well, no one who has been in the business for some time can doubt. And as an evidence of this, we have a list of people who have been in the business for some time and who are now making a fortune. The first of these is a lady who has been in the business for some time and who is now making a fortune. The second is a lady who has been in the business for some time and who is now making a fortune. The third is a lady who has been in the business for some time and who is now making a fortune. The fourth is a lady who has been in the business for some time and who is now making a fortune. The fifth is a lady who has been in the business for some time and who is now making a fortune. The sixth is a lady who has been in the business for some time and who is now making a fortune. The seventh is a lady who has been in the business for some time and who is now making a fortune. New that Kentucky has an Immigration Society whose duty it is to call the attention of the world to our State and to the untold resources, we need it as our duty as a citizen and as one who feels a deep interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of our State, to show our few suggestions, or rather words of caution. In our eagerness to develop the State and to have it filled up with people, we have been led to a class of citizens that is undesirable. No Castle Garden immigrant, no European agent, no cheap convict, no law-breaking renegade, no despicable socialist, no red-banded man, no flannel-mouthed anarchist, not one of these should be invited to our shores. We should one of them ever be permitted to set foot upon our sacred soil. Such people should not be allowed the privilege of entering our country during their stay with us the past summer.

The girls of Hartford gave a Halcyon party last Wednesday evening at Masonic Hall. The hall was artistically decorated with flowers, leaves, etc., and looked beautiful. Dancing was indulged in until 11 o'clock, when supper was served, which consisted of fruits, candies, etc. The following persons were present: Misses E. Thomas, Corinne Cor, Edna Griffin, Bertie Morton, Irene Roberts, Patricia Gregory, Florence White, Lela Brown, Mabel Brown, Rae Brown, Maura G. L. Armand, Clarence Field, Jas. Schneider, Henry Hall, B. T. Collins, Joe Hartman, Clyde Wadling, John Yaght, T. O. Baker, Ernie Morton, Wayne Griffin, Oberley Rogers, Madeline S. K. Cox and James A. Thomas seated as chaperons.

Mr. W. F. Taylor and wife, of near Haywardsville accompanied by their little son Leonard, have been the guests of Mr. Wm. Lyons and family for the past week. They brought their boy here to have him operated on by the doctors. Some time ago the little fellow, who is but 12 years old, sustained a fracture of the lower leg, the bone was put under the influence of chloroform, the flesh was cut into and lifted from the bone and this foreign substance was removed. It was quite a delicate and important operation, but was most successfully accomplished by Dr. J. W. Keene. He has been in the hospital at last October. She leaves this morning for home.

OHIO COUNTY POLITICS.

INCIDENTS OF OUR COUNTY MANY YEARS AGO.

A Review of Political Times in the Fifties—How Our Men Ran for Office in the "Good Old Days."

AN ANTE-HILLUM STORY.

Editorial Herald.—Reading an account by Raymond of the exciting Congressional race of Albert Gallatin Taft, both in the old Fourth Congressional District forty years ago, reminded me of Ohio county politics in 1854, when the late Judge A. B. Baird, then a handsome young country "Squire," the late Judge James Johnson and Robert Mosley (later Bob) were competing candidates for County Judge. H. D. Taylor and James Pittsford contested for the office of County Attorney. J. C. McKee, R. C. McKee and W. T. McKee contested for the office of County Clerk, and Eliza Phillips, J. B. Stevens and Col. R. T. Baird each aspired to be Sheriff. Political lines were not drawn so lightly then as now, and the contests were more decided by the personal popularity of the candidate rather than the popularity of his political principles, though then, as now, there were those who would as soon have thought of committing the supercilious sin as scratching their party ticket.

The Whigs were largely in the ascendancy in the county, and in several of the races there were Whigs running for the same office and one of them won over his Whig and Democratic competitors. Indeed the Whigs carried the day all along the line, notwithstanding their plurality of candidates for some of the offices, electing A. B. Baird County Judge, H. D. Taylor County Attorney, Eliza Phillips Sheriff and R. C. McKee County Clerk, though Mr. Phillips got in by a plurality only. But in these good old days the passion for holding office had not become so prevalent and an election was not so much a contest of the candidates, though defeated by over so narrow a margin, generally accepted of the election in the good faith, if not gracefully on the theory that "nobody is good as a mile."

The election of the next year, 1855, was more exciting. Know-nothingism, like most new "isms," had rolled like a wave of wild enthusiasm over the county, and though young, was strong and lusty, especially in Kentucky, and its candidates claimed—and came very near getting—everything in sight.

John P. Campbell, of Washington, was the Know-nothing candidate for Congress, and was opposed by that ideal of Democracy, our own Dr. Samuel O. Fay, who had the fathers home of his party in a caucus yet remembered for its vigor and brilliancy, and though defeated, Dr. Fay was not discouraged, for two years later he led his triumphant party to victory, defeating that brilliant old campaigner, James L. Johnson, of Owensboro. Know-nothingism had had its day; its nerve and prospective spirit had gotten to be understood by the people whose sober second thought can ever be relied on for a just and intelligent solution of questions of policy, involving either principle or expediency, and the Know-nothing party, which had risen on the magnificent ruins of the old Whig party in the South, the Know-nothing party in the North, was tottering to its fall, and as soon to sink the little boat under the dunes. The result was that Dr. Fay's broad and catholic views, enforced from the stump with a strength of logic and eloquence of diction peculiarly his own, proclaimed with such persuasiveness in 1855 and repeated in 1857, with illimitable derivation from the bitter experiences of the intervening time, impressed themselves upon the popular mind and caught at the polls the reflex of popular sentiment.

The race for Representative in the Legislature in 1857 was made up between that sturdy old Democrat, "Squire" Henry Thompson, and the gifted and popular young lawyer, Cleo Maxwell. The latter made a game and brilliant campaign, but the tide was at the ebb and he was defeated, but his talent for political debate had attracted public attention, and he was the next year, 1858, elected Commonwealth's Attorney, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ben Hardin State.

How well Colonel Maxwell discharged the duties of public prosecutor is well remembered by all who heard the fierce invectives which he hurled with such fiery eloquence at the hapless offender. He proceeded with discrimination, however, and it was only the criminal whose conduct exhibited the most impudent that he heaped the heaviest shafts and stinging bolts of an eloquent and always strenuous and far-reaching—having had a taste of political life by service in the State Senate.

Dr. Wm. J. Berry, of blessed memory, in 1860, defeated that lively old antagonist, Oliver C. Foster, for the Legislature. Dr. Berry was personally popular, gifted in the art of political campaign and campaigner and campaigner, and he carried the day in the election, and he was the next year, 1861, elected Commonwealth's Attorney, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ben Hardin State.
